How to Choose Scrap Bin Slides

Add some variety to the outside of your scrap bin when you improve the look of your yard with scrap bin slides. Unlike metal garbage bins, the exterior of an asphalt bin can be sealed to provide the ultimate in security. They are also better than trash cans because they are easier to keep clean, especially if you use a scraper to clean the inside, and they can also be cheaper than metal bins. A bin slide is typically made from two or three 3/16-inch steel plates that are attached together with screws or lag screws at various angles. This allows you to create more interesting shapes that may be shaped like open-topped, boat-like vessels, like the concrete bin slide pictured at left, or can be very angular like the aluminum bin slide shown below. Regardless of how you want to look, it will most likely involve attaching the steel plates together. If you don't know much about construction, it is not an overly difficult undertaking because the material is inexpensive, it is readily available, and you will be able to get most of the supplies you need at a hardware store.

Choose the Right Bin Slide Material and Accessories

When choosing a slide material, there are a few things to consider. First of all, make sure that the material you choose is resistant to rusting and oxidation, and that it is also galvanized if you plan to use it outdoors. Also be sure that your slide material is corrosion resistant. Make sure that you also use a concrete foundation, so that when you put the bin in place, the result is a solid base that will last for years. If you are planting shrubs or small trees near the bin, make sure that the soil can drain well if you intend to plant ground-cover plants. The type of concrete used can also be selected to make the bin more attractive, too. If 1cb139a0ed
