Throughout gameplay, fans will be able to watch as their favourite players react to gameplay events and see pre-canned animations and reactions. These animations will vary based on how their player is controlling the ball and how the player controls the ball. During game play, the HyperMotion data is used to decide how each player should move at specific moments in the game, all the while taking into account the player's control level, defensive intensity, and the number of players around them.

"HyperMotion Technology" will change the way players react in a variety of different scenarios.

Before a free kick, you'll see the ball hitting the net as the players in the backline react, and the goalkeeper will dive to his left or right. Players hit the post, the bar will shake, corners will be taken in, and the tiki-taka swarming begins, and all with a variety of reactions that aren't possible before the new technology. BETISLAYER The "BETISLAYER" function is the first in-game look at how the HyperMotion technology is applied to the gameplay, and how fans can see the game mechanics better than ever before. BETISLAYER provides an in-depth look at all the motion capture data and animations used to create the game's strongest version of gameplay. It also takes fans inside the game and exposes the millions of unseen data that goes into creating the best possible game.

During BETISLAYER, fans can see how the data is applied on-screen for the first time. The player-specific animations and reactions you'll see in BETISLAYER will not be in the game when it's released on September 6th. What's new in Fifa 22:

- Tackle Testing: Training pitch actions will significantly reduce the amount of time players are affected by the broken ball. This is added as a result of feedback received from FIFA players.
- Faster Player Development : Younger players with lower frame ratings are now expected to develop more quickly in games, and consequently to reach higher frame ratings sooner. This should give players more opportunities to develop and create more combinations that add more options to their game.
- Slower recovery after losing the ball: Players recover more slowly if they lose the ball. This should make them less likely to give away possession by dribbling recklessly if they are threatened with the opposition pressing the ball.
- Respawns within specified radius: In Career Mode, when a player falls or is forced out of the ball his position will automatically be taken by his less experienced team mate. The player who suffered the bad result will therefore automatically respawn.
- Improved reactive AI: Throughout your career in the FIFA 22 game, your opponent AI reactions are now more predictable and realistic. Control the flow of the game and a more experience team will react to the challenges more suited to their style.
- Improved Skill moves: Skill moves have been improved to be smarter and more reactive. This increases the chances of players performing these moves consistently.
- Goal animations: FIFA 22's goal animations are more accurate and more responsive. Players will more often make successful runs to the goal, but will have to use them to buy more time.
- Improved player control: Players better able to manipulate the ball in a variety of situations; playing the ball backwards, stepping or sliding it, and completing dribble moves.
- Improved ball physics: Respond more instinctively to the actions of your teammates and opponent players, adding excitement and a more realistic experience for players. Player control is also improved.

- Improved passing: Passes are more easy to make and more effective. They are more aware of which direction to play to, allowing their teammates to increase their chances of a successful pass. **
