It is quite possibly the worst prepared interview I have ever have prepared. In the "competitions" we covered events such as sales forecasting, job hunting, employee relations, and planning for dramatic events (such as learning, un-learning, exercising for Good Morning America, and the like). Based on my experience, the really good real estate agents aren't "just in real estate"! Nor are all MLS agents members of the Realtor Association. Yes, there are good ones who stayed out of the MLS for a number of reasons. And, there are those that have rejoined just because it "made sense" to do so. Hi Paul I am wondering about also. Consider that we have this amazing technology of 3D scanning today. Now I know some of you don't like it I think they have a really good reason for not doing it. Would you let your agent use this tool to see into your next home so you can be a part of the process before they bid? This way you see exactly what it looks like,

Thank you for your support. Square Enix, Inc.Last night, Michigan Radio station WGVU 88.9 FM was the lucky recipient of a very special car. The station, which is the largest public radio station in Michigan, had a string of 52 light bulbs stolen when they parked their car overnight. Some helpful window washers found the little buggers and gave them a ride to a police station before turning them in. Station owner and talk show host Paul F. Morikaw told the Detroit Free Press he plans to donate the car to the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra. The Detroit Free Press reports that about 100 cars were stolen from the lot last year in Kalamazoo. They asked the police for a suggestion, and they have people that spot cars being stolen and call in the police. The police believe that some of the thieves will attempt to sell the cars on the street. Fortunately, no one was hurt, and no great loss was incurred. [Update: The Detroit Free Press has an update on this story.]Freak traces "the discography of a hardcore band in the Aberdeen, Scotland scene from 1981-1993." It features a visual tour of the musical and visual explosion of that Scottish scene in the late eighties. Here is the blurb from a review in the latest issue of Live Music Now: Freak traces "the discography of a hardcore band in the Aberdeen, Scotland scene from 1981-1993." "The early 'hardcore' scene in Britain was often defined by geographical segregation. 'East and West Anglia' were the territories of punk, with London's thriving death rock crowd to the South and the West. Scotland was a different matter. With the massive decline of Punk and traditional Heavy Metal, the whole of Scotland became an enclave for a unique and passionately nurtured UK Hardcore, with such bands as the Virgins, Dead and Buried, Shihad, Global Design, The Lenz, Shit or Get Off the Grass and the mighty, Killdozer." That's from the blurb at

Q: How to force a variable to be an object? I am working on a currency converter for a homework assignment. It works great, but the variable currency is an integer, as in "USD" or "GBP", and I need it to be a string, like "USD" or "GBP". curs = input('Please enter the currency you want to convert to: ') try: cur = cur.lower() if cur == 'usd': usd = 1.0 yuanda = float(input('Please enter the amount you want to convert in yuan: ')) yuandb = usd * yuanda input('Your converted yuan is:'+ str(yuandb)) I get an error about trying to unpack a str while I need it to be a number. In pseudo code I want to convert the string "usd" to "USD" and the string "gbp" to "GBP" and make the variable currency equal to the string I am converting. Can anyone help me out? A: You can convert integer to str before doing conversion. Look at this >>> convert_to_str = lambda x: str(x) >>> list_of_strings = ["meh", 10, convert_to_str(10)] >>> ["%s" % item for item in list_of_strings] ['%s' % meh, '10', '10'] You can do same to convert currencies currency_to_str = lambda x: str(x) New Orleans police said a 15-year-old girl was killed
