FIFA 22 improves simulation during tactical transitions by capturing and displaying the player movements during the buildup phases of the match to create a richer in-game experience with instant visibility of movement patterns on the pitch. During in-game sequences, the level of animation fidelity is equivalent to real-life movements using HyperMotion Technology, which is the only way to realistically translate real-life real-time movement into video game imagery. The data is also used to power the new goal kicks feature, which leverages the movement data collected during the football match to display how players approach the ball. What's new in Fifa 22:

- Use the new Pass Control function to intercept your opponents passes and increase your on-ball control over the ball. This is especially useful in dribbling and ball possession.
- AI: the new, more complex AI algorithm creates more intelligent and rewarding decisions for both forwards and defences. Players now make more challenging evasive moves to spot you. The AI will increasingly take up advanced positions during a game, starting from the throw-in line, and if close to goal will move towards the ball.
- Linemen: this year, we're introducing positional defending into the game. Guards will react to certain types of passes and not just tackle the closest player within their position.
- New Techniques: come up with a free-kick bomb from the touchline, master the drills to spread the ball around and score with a first-time finish, or catch your opponent cold with an in-swinging corner.
- Multiple New Players: we've added over 100 new players to improve roster depth, while the transfer system has also been overhauled to make the entire management process more flexible. Enhance your team with the new outfield bench, adding both young and experienced players to your squad.
- Universal Transfer System: you now have the flexibility to customize the development of your players and change the order of your preferred development plays. You also have the power to automate your transfer strategy and accelerate the process.
- Intelligent Matchday Tactics System: opponent analyses make all the difference in the outcome of any match and this year, your AI manager can make use of weather, fatigue levels and changes in the team. In addition to this, have the battle ready with the new Targeting system. You can pick out a specific player and prepare a strategy to contain him by setting the positioning of your players or defenders. Keep them pinned and track him down.
