Welcome to the CenturyLink Cloud Mail service. This help file provides basic information on how to manage your CenturyLink service with your new email account. To learn more, you can connect with a CenturyLink representative. Go to CenturyLink & Help & Contacts to connect with a representative. When I publish a new version of a service, I also create a backup script so that the original files are not lost. I am writing a tutorial on how to create and automate your own backup scripts so that you do not have to worry about such issues. I would like to make this a free tutorial which means that I would like to share the final script with you. My fellow colleague, Mr Sim, has been helping me to edit the script and test the backups, and now I would like to open my tutorial for comments. The admin interface lets you configure printers from a selection box, where you can filter through all of the devices youve been authorized to use in the PaperCut Cloud. You can also make selections and enable printers from more than one source - like from your Edge Mesh, an add-on, or from a flat file. Overall, the admin interface is easy to use and get your printers up and running. The PaperCut app features the option for users to choose the method in which they will connect to their printers - from a direct connection via IPP, to an SSH connection that directs the connection over SSH to the IPP client over an SSH connection. Which one you choose is up to you, and how you configure your environment. The app provides a configurable connection manager with the option to allow remote command execution - which is nice for those with more advanced environments. The only downside to direct IPP is that it requires you to have an IPP server - but that isn't very common anymore.
